14) There are no District Excise Officers for the Districts where the Separation Scheme is in force, and hence no Ex. Officers Inspectors of Stamps for these Districts.

15) The old circular does not appear to require a change; as see 3rd it makes provision for other Officers, besides Excise Officers, being appointed Inspectors of Stamps.

16) In such Districts, the duty may be cast on those, on whom have devolved the functions of the old District Excise Officer, if that is not considered too much additional burden. I believe this no great burden.

I do not like the idea of Trustee Officers who have no experience in the working of the Trustee Relief Acts being appointed Inspectors of Estates. Some of them are Officers who have arisen from the ranks of Trustee Inspectors.

It would seem that the District Registrars in respect of Civil Courts and Sub-District Registrars in respect of all their Offices may be appointed Inspectors. They may be worked up separately.
